HORATIO SEYMOUR AT HOME.

HIS ORIGIN, FAMILY, CHARACTER AND HISTORY—AND HIS LITTLE GAME—SKETCH OF NEW YORK POLITICS AND POLITICIANS.

[Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.]

Eight days ago I stood in the house of the father of General Grant at Covington, Kentucky. A plain family, looking at their daily life; a quiet house, testifying the quiet citizen contentment of its inmates; the old gentleman sitting in the cool of his threshold steps; within, the son and General, resting after his visit to his birth place in Ohio. It was a republican picture of what republicanism should be; a home where glory came with its filial duty, leading its wife by the hand, without an uneasy ambition, without a boast or a sham. The name of the General had gone round the world, but he did not carry the consciousness of it in his eye, nor the memory of it in his carriage. What we all wish our sons to be, virtuous, modest, and, if possible, eminent, Jesse Grant had lived to enjoy in his boy. And without that saddest of all feelings, too often attendant upon the pride of one's child, which, while it wonders at its offspring, cries with a mute yearning:

"My child is too great to remember his old father!"

One week from that day I saw in this city of Utica, Horatio Seymour come back to his neighbors, matched by his party to contend for the Chief Magistracy of the Nation with the General of Armies. It was only yesterday. Let me tell you about it:

DESCRIPTION OF SEYMOUR.

The train came in from Albany. Out of it stepped that Horatio who kept Cayuga Bridge so well. A small brass cannon, firing irregularly as a dying pulse, made the hot day smoke like the final judgment. Escorted by old Judge Denio, a gifted gentleman with one tooth and a scarlet baldness like a bare ship's deck, the candidate walked up through the depot into Bagg's Hotel, a railroad feeding-house. Hurrying before him was Spriggs, the Mayor of the place, a youngish instance of rotund good living. Mr. Spriggs waved his straw hat. A brass band sweating a tune stepped before the Governor and pealed a heat lightning tune. In the passage-way between the depot and the hotel two Catholic priests with a large orphan asylum revived the recollection of that other orphan asylum burnt by the Governor's friends in the New York riots. The orphan children standing in file, looked at the great man bowing past. He turned through the office and emerged upon the other entrance to the hotel, where, under a small portico draped with a flag, he came to a halt. A steam fire-engine called the "Erina," manned by Irish salamanders, instantly began to whistle shrilly. At this signal a hundred men or more, standing in the baking sun of the main street, raised a cheer.

Then Judge Denio, stopping to pick his one tooth with his forefinger, addressed the Governor with an air between pathos and sun-stroke, the Mayor, meantime, sweating enthusiastically. It was of little consequence what these two bold worthies said but, as I stood at the very elbow of the Governor, I put all my ears into my eyes, and made this inventory of him: Almost a little man, slender, lean, and looking to be in poor health, and weighing above one hundred and thirty pounds, and not more than five feet eight in height. He appeared in the disadvantageous guise of a weak and overcrowded person on a blistering day, his standing collar melted, perspiration on his face and dust on his coat. Not even the bandbox toilet of a New York politician can stand the thermometer at a hundred, and a three hours' railroad ride to boot.

Looking past these superficials, I saw in Mr. Seymour a man far from that perfect sanity and farther still from the perfect beauty I had expected. A large, sensual mouth, a nose thin and mean at the bridge and merely fat at the nostril, a forehead spherical and Van Buren like, seeking capacity in baldness, and round the nape of the neck and under the throat a grey fringe of cobwebby grey hair—an indecisive face, altogether, which had lost its moral power, if it ever had any, by playing the eternal role of affected graciousness; a klabbery mildness in the face thereof, and the cat eating the klabber in the man's eye. "Old Bunny Klabber" would be a good name for this latest jelly fish of deportment. Beyond these externals the only significant thing to be observed of Mr. Seymour was an uneasy wildness of the eyes, as if some mental excitement shone there. Conjoined with his ductile face, this unnatural restlessness of the eyes insensibly suggested to me the misfortune of his parents, both insane, the shadow of whose fate has been his constant premonition.

It was my old experience again, of coming a thousand miles to see a celebrated presence and finding it merely a commonplace person with the problem of reputation in him.

SEYMOUR SPEAKING.

When old Judge Denio had picked his one tooth a good while, and chawed his words of welcome on his forefinger, making altogether the most uninteresting speech I ever heard, Seymour put his hand in his coat breast and replied in a bronchial, laborious voice, a little nervous in his manner, to the effect that it was good to be welcomed by one's neighbors without distinction of party, and that he must not speak further. Then he backed into the house, and without noticing the orphans of white man's government, slipped upstairs and so out to his carriage, when he trotted off to Deerfield, his country residence. I forgot to say that while Judge Denio was getting his one tooth ready for the speech of welcome, Mr. Seymour, with genuine political habitude, dived for a man's hand near by and hand shook a vote out of him.

THE SEYMOUR FAMILY.

The Seymour family is composed of five members, Horatio, John, Mrs. Conkling, Mrs. Shonnard and Mrs. Linkloan. The father of them all emigrated from Litchfield, Conn., to Pompey, in the present county of Onondaga. He was a successful politician, rose to be Canal Commissioner, left his children money, removed to Utica, and shot himself through the heart with a shot gun, while crazy. John Seymour is a lawyer, who occupies his brother Horatio's city residence. His abilities are fair. Mrs. Shonnard lives at Cazenovia, and Mrs. Linkloan at Yonkers, New York. Mrs. Conkling, the youngest sister, resides at Washington, with her husband, part of the year. She has two children.

The characteristics of this family to go no further social position. They are not noted for charities; they all married well, and got, by marriage, increase of goods. Mrs. Conkling is a strong partisan of her husband as against her brother, and it is related here that when Horatio Seymour said he was prepared to spend ten thousand dollars to defeat Conkling for the United States Senate, his sister presented her husband with her check for five thousand dollars, and stood prepared to go five better.

Conkling has frequently denounced Seymour in debate and on the stump. Seymour is jealous of him, for Conkling has the better mind and body of the two, and though he makes more enemies than Seymour, he plays a surer game.

HORATIO SEYMOUR'S POLITICAL RECORD.

Horatio Seymour cannot be said to be a lawyer as he is not anything thoroughly, unless it be a politician. He studied law and began its practice, but, getting early in life the agency for the great Bleeker and Dudley property—Albany proprietaries—he found that merely tending to its rents and real estate gave him abundant competence. He married Miss Bleeker, of the Albany patroon family—for I suppose every one with a Dutch name is a patroon in this State. "Patroon" is getting to be as big a nuisance as the "First Family of Virginia," or the Huguenot of South Carolina. Miss Bleeker had money and estate, so Horatio Seymour set himself systematically to work to make politics an art and a craft.

His public career began about twenty-six years ago, when he was sent to the Assembly or Lower House of the Legislature of New York. The next year he was made Mayor of Utica, and the next year was beaten for re-election by Fred Hollister. Re-elected to the Assembly, he became its Speaker, and afterward he was sent to the State Senate.

He now worked assiduously for the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York, and threw himself into the arms of the "Hunkers," or Cass Democrats, still lying low so as not to offend the "Barnburners" or Van Buren Democrats. The Barnburners beat him with Talcott of Oswego, and afterward with Lyman J. Walworth, so that he never got the nomination till 1850.

Finding it hard work to triumph with a divided party, Seymour tried to amalgamate the Hunkers and Barnburners. In 1848 he took the stump for General Cass against the Free Soilers, and indulged in some diluted animadversions upon the Van Burens. When he received the nomination in 1850, he carried over a small portion of the Hunkers and united them with the Barnburners, making what is remembered as the "Softs" or forgiving party. Some of the old Hunkers determined never to forgive the Van Burens, held out and constituted the "Hards." Cotemporary with these the Whig party was also divided into Fillmore and Seward factions, known as Silver Grays and Wooly Heads. These latter nominated against Seymour, Washington Hunt, of Lockport, and, by a close fight, elected him.

In 1852 the contest was renewed and Seymour was this time successful. His only act of magnitude, and the only monument of his life, occurred in this, his first Gubernatorial term. He vetoed the Prohibitory Liquor law, when it was enacted by the Legislature, and got the eternal gratitude and support of the liquor interests—the same which he relies upon to-day.

In 1854 he ran again, and was beaten by Myron H. Clark, the Temperance candidate.

This brings the personal biography of Mr. Seymour almost up to the war. He made [illegible] for other people meantime, and tried to get rich by investing in western improvements, in Fox river, Des Moines, and Sault Ste. Marie navigation. He proved an indifferent financier, and his political rank was no better [illegible] Peter Cagger's or Peter Sweeney's, except for his urbanity. A plausible co-ordinate respectability, novel for that reason in the Democratic Regency of New York, he had held [illegible] without [illegible] anything, and to this day has not left that rank.

HORATIO SEYMOUR AND THE WAR.

The war for the country and freedom had probably no supporter so sinister and lukewarm. His country extended no further than the Democratic party, and he foresaw that with the extinction of slavery the sheet anchor of prejudice would go, and he knew that Democracy was dead without prejudices. Therefore at Tweedle Hall, in Albany, in 1861, he made a speech where his terror of the consequence of the war made him bold to the verge of treason itself. He said that coercion was more unjust than secession, and would not have union unless his cabal could be kept alive by it.

Soon after, in the city of Utica, he declared that secession had better triumph rather than slavery perish, a sentiment which neither patriotism nor humanity will ever forgive. Taking this part in the vital and almost friendless hour of the country, Governor Morgan, who knew Seymour's unscrupulous ambition, hoped to quiet him by making him Chairman of the War Committee. This bribe of office, all-potential with him, [illegible] his silvery heresies, and Seymour, [illegible] a faint hope of identifying the Democratic party with the war, and so preserving it from total annihilation, made a few war speeches, feeble to his declarations in favor of treason.

As the war progressed and cowards cried peace with every new defeat, Horatio Seymour, full of discouraging criticism upon President Lincoln, Congress, and the more uncomp[illegible] of the soldiery, ran against General Wadsworth for Governor in 1862. The rebels, measuring the number of Northern cowards by the dimensions of Seymour's vote, took fresh confidence, and bore their battle-flags along the whole line of the Union. The dead soldiers' vote, murdered by his triumph, would pass the roll, [illegible], of the living veterans whose ballots will [illegible] Seymour. Straightway on his election the stews and dens of New York poured out in insurrection, taking hope from his defiance of the Central Government. He stood on the steps of the City Hall, [illegible] plausibility, and made such speeches as [illegible] Jezebel might make to her hounds. No man in New York State is the hero of the riots of New York City so eminently as Horatio Seymour. General Grant has his Vicksburg and his Richmond, but Mr. Seymour has his victory at the Orphan Asylum, in Grand street, on [illegible], at the City Hall, and round the body of Col. O'Brien, whom the friends of the Governor, harridan and hag and dog-fighter and prize fighter, kicked to death as he lay in his uniform, exposed to the putrifying sun.

Mr. Seymour was an embarrassment to the government during all the war—a dangerous neutral in the rear. To him General Dix sent the message when he said:

"I have enough troops to take care of the mob and the Governor, too."

Strange is the hardihood of a party to nominate a man like this, the Lamartine of the Faubourgs of New York, set up against the General who was winning glory afar over enemies of the flag.

HOW SEYMOUR SLEW WILLIAM ALLEN.

A good evidence of the political honor of Horatio Seymour is afforded in the case of his treatment of William F. Allen, of Oswego, in 1864. Allen went into convention with a sure thing for the nomination for Governor, and Seymour had promised not to run against him.

However, as Seymour was just about closing up his term as Governor de facto he intimated through his friends that he would like the endorsement of a merely complimentary nomination. The nomination was made out of compliment, when, to the disgust and surprise of Allen, Seymour accepted it and slew the Allenites on their own threshold. This is, therefore, Mr. Seymour's habitual way of declining nominations. The nominee of the Democratic people he has never been, and he has no regard for their suffrage, except as dumb elements of political machinery.

It is needless to say that with his riot record the people beat Seymour by 7,000 majority. Since 1864 he has been working for the Presidency systematically, laying every block, setting up the keel, wiping out his record, setting baits for folks to commit themselves to him. He knew when he left Utica that he should come back the candidate, and the Democrats of Utica knew it also.

SEYMOUR'S SACRED HONOR.

I learn this fact in Utica, which shows the value of appearances and professions in Governor Seymour. He announced with solemn suavity that he could not be a candidate, having promised not to permit the use of his name. Yet as far back as March last he invited a wavering Republican, named Hughes, who had been his intimate friend for many years, to dine with him, and at his house asked for the support of Hughes. The latter is, or was, a Universalist preacher of Utica. Hughes replied that he could not support Governor Seymour as the nominee of men like Vallandigham and Henry Clay Dean. To this the Governor replied that he had cut himself aloof from their association and did not recognize them as Democrats. Then Hughes did go over on account of friendship, and made Democratic speeches; for he is a strong man on the stump. By this we see that Mr. Seymour began last spring to get men committed to him for the Presidency. Yet, says the convention of New York, "the office has sought the man, and not the man the office." Not only is Governor Seymour the nominee, but the nominee of Vallandigham in person. Pendleton, the youngest eagle of the West, and Chase, the most ancient fox of the hencoop, have been equally flanked by the modest Governor. While Pendleton was preparing to slaughter poor Hendricks, his real enemy was Seymour.

"Shall he expire
And unavenged!
Arise, ye Goths,
And glut your ire!"

As a little matter, fresh here, to show what Salmon P. Chase thinks of Horatio Seymour's friendship, let me give you this exemplification:

CHIEF JUSTICE CHASE'S REMORSE.

Judge Underwood, of Virginia, who is here in Utica to attend the commencement of Hamilton College—of which Horatio Seymour, Governor Hawley, Gerritt Smith and himself are graduates—says that he has seen Chief Justice Chase since the Democratic nomination was made. Judge Underwood was a colaborer with Mr. Chase in Virginia reconstruction, and is still friendly to him. Mr. Chase expresses himself as a supporter of Grant and Colfax. He states that the Democrats treated him with treachery and design, assuring him of the nomination at New York as a foregone matter, but asking his co-operation in little paragraphic points of platform, so that they might harmonize in convention, and not estrange the great minority of Western or Prick Pomeroy Democrats. Leading him so from admission to admission, they magnified and exaggerated his relinquishments with the intent to bring his friends over to their nominee, while they should cast him self aside. The Chief Justice claims that the only interest he had in the Democratic nomination was to secure the permanence of the universal suffrage by assisting the Democratic party to acknowledge it. With the minority party moved up in charity nearly to the position of the majority, Mr. Chase believed that the suffrage could never be again assailed by either. He seems to have had a bellyfull of Democratic professions, particularly of the kind that New York politicians give, and in this campaign, going back to his cardinal humanities, has concluded to hate his last [illegible] the [illegible]. All this shows that the Justice has no [illegible] to tamper with the scales, and perhaps Mr. Chase may be spitted with his own steelyards. When Jove makes a bid for the vote of the frogs, [illegible] has no fable severe enough to apply to him. [illegible], seeing that Æsop had come to a place where his art was inadequate, dropped a tortoise on the Satirist's bald scalp and closed his literature. The American Eagle has only the tortoise [illegible] for Mr. Chase. You men in Mississippi Valley must get up early to beat those New York politicians. The Chases are poor rivals for the Van Bu[illegible].

THE POLITICIAN AT HOME.

Mr. Seymour is sometimes in the city of Utica, sometimes at Albany, but generally at his [illegible] in Deerfield, two miles from Utica. [illegible] walks a little, lays plans, keeps a private [illegible]tary, holds the links of [illegible], but [illegible] the plow, never [illegible] the [illegible], and in [illegible] ner earns the name so foreign to his [illegible] that the Democrats are trying to fasten to him of the "Farmer of D[illegible]field." The [illegible] field is a [illegible] ther [illegible].

He has no children, and never had any. His wife and he are not fond. It is said that he [illegible] to be in Albany for days together [illegible] engaged, and [illegible] visit her. He is [illegible] with female society. The study of self and the thirst and spiral gait for place have [illegible] unsexed Horatio Seymour. He is [illegible] nor woman—only a manipul[illegible] of [illegible].

He has been said to show evidences two or three times of softening of the brain. [illegible] less he is anything but a hard [illegible] studying any subject to [illegible] it, only [illegible] to talk plausibly upon it. He is with [illegible] tions, has no specialty in State [illegible] never known to come to any conclusion [illegible] ever in argument. To make men [illegible] appear [illegible] for the purposes of politics [illegible] a sleek yearning for the good of the party, and to have no conception of a country without [illegible] tio Seymour in it—this is the [illegible] of [illegible] make [illegible] of, and at whim, [illegible] Utica, we will take another look. EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE

SCOTTSBURG Aug 10 1868

From Oakland to Scottsburg by mail Started at an early hour driving out 'under the opening eyelids of the morn tasting what the poets call the fresh, dewy breath of the rising day Beholding the sun which a few hours since sank to its bed in ocean, now "repair its drooping head, trick its beams, and flame with new spangled ore in the forehead of the morning sky" Taking large draughts of an atmosphere whose elastic vitalizing energy gives new life and causes the blood to forget its sluggishness and to leap and flow with renewed activity and vigor Over hills gilded by the beams of the rising sun, across valleys whitened by the hand of Ceres winding through columnar forests passing brooks and streamlets which wander under pendent shades with mazy error, coursing along the precipitous banks of a river which tears impatiently through mountain gorges now slackening the pace so as to linger where the great trees throw their shadows far away upon the road and now rising upon the crest of a high [illegible] hill where the heat of the sun is attempered by breezes from ocean,—such was my employment during a day in the fore part of the present month of 1868.

But it may be as well to quit this attempt at sentiment right here,—for unlike the wit of the person in the old play, it is not at all nimble, and [illegible] well. Mr Gradgrind's philosophy about facts, however sordid it may be, affords safer grounds to tread on Let us therefore look about us for something which the world regards as a little more substantial than sentiment about sunshine and breezes and warbling brooks In short, let us see what we find at Scottsburg

I have before me the first ten numbers of the Umpqua Weekly Gazette, a paper which made its first appearance at Scottsburg, on the 7th of April, 1854 Its publisher was Wm. J. Beggs; its editor, D J Lyons Mr Beggs, after having been variously employed upon the Oregon press for a number of years, went to California about 1860, where he has since been connected with sundry newspaper [illegible] Mr. Lyons is still a resident of [illegible] The Gazette was the first paper published in Oregon, south of the Calapooia [illegible] The introductory number con- [illegible] to the citizens of Scottsburg to [illegible] with liberal subscriptions to [illegible] road from their town to Win- [illegible] as this was the measure upon which the [illegible] of both places depended The [illegible] road was built, but neither town has [illegible] its early [illegible]. Of Win- [illegible] is known; the [illegible], with the [illegible] of the residence of the proprietor, is no more. Scottsburg is a little more fortunate. The town at this time contains about half a dozen families with one store and one [illegible] and forwarding warehouse The great flood of 1860 carried away about thirty buildings on the lower street, the most con- [illegible] portion of the town. In the last [illegible] of the Overland Monthly we have an account of [illegible] City, a town that was and is not. Scottsburg is hardly to be reckoned in the same category, for the place still [illegible], and as a shipping point has considera- [illegible] but it is not the place which it [illegible] to be in the hey-day of its youth, [illegible] ago.

[illegible] numbers of the Umpqua Gazette [illegible] us that the Umpqua river is a very [illegible] place for the entrance of shipping, [illegible] bar [illegible] and [illegible] reward; that [illegible] a good depth of water in the river, [illegible] we do not claim the depth of [illegible] the bar which the Columbia has, [illegible] should be unwilling to exchange, and [illegible] odd miles of dangerous navigation between the outer bar and a harbor, for this [illegible] two fathoms." Also, that the [illegible] should not be placed by the side of the [illegible] of stranded vessels, "for it is quite exempt from those causes whence result [illegible] serious losses of human life." But the [illegible], though a tolerably safe entrance, did not succeed in establishing its claims as a rival of the Columbia. Yet it was once supposed that there was a serious rivalry between the two rivers, and Scottsburg actually contended with Portland for the trade of Oregon [illegible] the Umpqua Gazette did not hesitate to prophesy "that in a few years the T rail will cover the wagon road, and heavy trains, laden with produce and provisions, will be running from Scottsburg to Portland" It is amusing now to revive these incidents in our history, yet fifteen years hence many of the expectations and enterprises of this time will seem as strange and extravagant as do the pretensions which were set up by Scottsburg in 1853-4.

It ought to be added here that the Umpqua Gazette, which professed such brilliant things for this town, expired after a brief existence of less than one year. The material of the office was taken to Jacksonville, and used to [illegible] the publication of the Sentinel

The decline of Scottsburg was owing to the failure of the mines in the Southern part of the [illegible] territory, which were supplied through this place, and to the completion of the road from Crescent City to Jacksonville, thus cutting off the remainder of the trade in that quarter Yreka, Cottonwood, Sailor Diggings and all the mines of that region, at one day got their supplies here. Citizens of this place relate that they have known times when pack trains numbering in the aggregate more than one thousand animals have been waiting here for vessels to arrive to give them loads for the interior.

Yet this place is still a shipping point of considerable importance All the goods consumed in the valley of the Umpqua are supplied through Scottsburg Oakland, Roseburg and Canyonville receive their goods by wagon from here, and at this time this forwarding business is going on with considerable activity A steamer from San Francisco enters the river once a month, bringing merchandise for this trade, and carrying away the products of Umpqua valley Wheat, flour, bacon and wool are shipped from this place in considerable quantities and from Gardiner, a point on the river some miles below, a large amount of lumber sawn at that place is sent away The manufacture of lumber at Gardiner last year amounted to three million feet Timber in great quantities grows upon the Umpqua river and the tide sloughs about its mouth and lumbering will long continue to be an important interest here The valley of this river for a distance of sixty miles from the ocean is in all places quite narrow never exceeding a couple of miles in width Bound by difficult mountains which seem in most places quite impervious and destined for ages to come to defy the efforts of the hand of man to subdue their native wildness there is little chance here for a community based on agriculture, to grow and expand But there may easily be great improvement and in a few years there doubtless will be In the valley within fifteen or twenty miles of this place are many thousands of acres of land equal to the very best in the State, and though all of it is claimed, a very small part only is cultivated If flour can be made at Canyonville ninety miles distant, and hauled here for shipment to California it could surely be made with profit in the valley a few miles above this place There is yet no mill in operation this side of Oakland but this want will soon be supplied by the completion of one new building six miles distant from here Twenty dollars a ton is now paid for hauling each way between Scottsburg and Oakland, and a little more between Scottsburg and Roseburg The completion of a railroad from Portland through the upper valley of the Umpqua would cut off the trade in general merchandise through the mouth of this river, yet the lumber and agricultural interests of this quarter will always be considerable enough to keep communication with San Francisco open Freight is taken from here to San Francisco by steamer for eight dollars per ton The last steamer took out forty tons of wool and a large lot of bacon—products of the upper valley Probably a third part of the wool of Umpqua goes to the mills of Wallamette, the remainder finds an outlet by this way to San Francisco S

At the Same Old Tricks

Prior to the election of Abraham Lincoln in 1860, the Southern chivalry used to swear great bombastic oaths that if it should appear that a majority of the electoral votes were in favor of the Abolition candidates, they would not submit. At that time there were, North and South, many fearful souls who had no faith in the ability of the government to live through a great insurrection, they doubted not only the capacity of the people for self government, but their patriotism they doubted if the people could be actuated by any common impulse, to work together for a common result Such people were afraid to try the experiment of putting the people to the test, and hence were led by mere cowardice, to advise a continuance of the truckling policy through which the masses had always been governed by the chivalry. They thought it best to let the big, spoiled, passionate and threatening child, have its way rather than to attempt correction The pet had said that there would be a row if it did not have everything its own way, and so these timid people said "well let it have its way, we don't want a row" Thereby, the chivalry not only gained some votes both North and South, but was itself encouraged into more violent insubordination and finally into open rebellion

Since the second birth of the spirit of rebellion, conceived by the Democratic party, brought forth, baptized and christened by the Democratic National Convention of the 4th of July, the chivalry have drawn on their big boots and spurs a second time and are now threatening as loudly as in 1860 that if a majority of their electoral votes cast next November shall be for Grant and Colfax, they will not submit The Mobile Register, in a fiery editorial, denunciatory of Radical rule, says "and here we may as well say that if the people of the South do not intend to submit to that permanent rule, result as the Presidential election may" It threatens that the people will take up arms in the event of the election of Grant The tone of the Democratic press, late rebel, and on the speeches delivered on the occasions of ratifying the nominations of Seymour and Blair, is the same as that of this extract from the Mobile Register All the rebel oracles follow the lead of Vance and Wise, and construe Blair's letter to mean an armed revolution. The bluster of the chivalry in 1860 was not a whit more windy, fierce and bragging than the bluster which now loads the air of every State lately in rebellion. The chivalry seemed to have learned no wisdom from the experience of those of the last seven years, and to be now as fully under the belief that the American people may be scared into compliance with their demand, as they were in 1860 The great lesson of the rebellion has been lost upon them through the evil counsels of the Democracy They may yet learn, however that the Democracy, as it deceived them once to their great cost, may again deceive them to still greater cost The American people will sustain this government and its laws and will never permit any portion of its people to successfully defy them Obedience to law was the demand of the people when they rallied to our flag in 1861 and a similar demand will be made and enforced whenever and wherever any portion of the people shall attempt rebellion The old trick of threatening and blustering was played out in 1860 and the Democratic chivalry might better try a new dodge

The Democrats speak of the fact that several soldiers participated in the 4th of July Convention as indicative of a change of base of the Union defenders It really is something of a change of base when a Union soldier deserts his colors and runs away into the Democratic camp but we never heard of one who did himself any honor by such a maneuver McClellan's change of base from the Chickahominy to the James river was the most disastrous piece of strategy he ever played, the soldiers who changed their base on the 4th of July, will find their strategy equally fatal to themselves A fine commentary however on the soldier element in the Democratic National Convention, is furnished in the fact that there were present as delegates more than two confederate soldiers to one from the Union army

The San Francisco Dispatch says 'We cannot discover that Grant's immense popularity is very damaging in Kentucky' In Kentucky the rebels all vote and they have not forgotten nor forgiven Grant for being immensely 'damaging to them in 1862 That's what's the matter in Kentucky

A correspondent at Coveland, W T says the crops in that region are very good It is estimated that the yield in Island county will be of wheat 30,000 bushels, barley, 12,000, oats, 6,000, hay, 600 tons The farmers are having very favorable weather for gathering their crops

A Democratic exchange asks 'Is the white man to rule?' In strict confidence, we reply, yes—the white man, Grant Be comforted

OREGON CITY ITEMS.—From the Enterprise of last Saturday, we gather the following subjoined items of news from Oregon City: The contest for the office of Sheriff in this county has been terminated. Mr. Myers retains the position, and while many votes were thrown out on both sides, it seems that the majority over his competitor was one more than when the ballots were counted. ......Many people this year go to the coast at the mouth of Salmon river. Gov. Woods and family, Rev. P. S. Knight and family, Capt. McGowan and family, Thomas Brooks and bride, F. O. McCown and family, and the family of Hon. D. P. Thompson, are now among the ex... there to recuperate. ......Flour is being sold in San Francisco from the Clackamas county mills at from 25 to 50 cents more on the barrel than the very best qualities of California flour. The San Francisco reporters call it "Oregon extra, old crop," and try to force a smile with the reflection that "Oregon extra in first hands is now reduced to 500 barrels," held at $6 75......On Saturday last Mr. Wm. H. Anderson, of this city, tested the celebrated Giant Powder at the P. T. Co.'s basin. The entrance has been obstructed by rocks, which were blown to atoms almost in less than no time, by the use of a quarter of a pound of this powder. It is marvelous what it will do......City Seminary.—This school re-opens on Monday, the 24th inst., with the following departments and corps of teachers: Primary Department, Miss Mary Warren; Preparatory Department, Miss Harriet Pambrun; Intermediate Department, Mr. N. W. ...all; Higher Department, S. D. Pope, B. A.—the whole number under charge of Mr. Pope as Principal. During the summer recess the City Council have completely refitted the building, painted it throughout and fenced in the lot, giving it a cheerful appearance and thus rendering it more pleasant both to teachers and pupils. Another department has been added, and the whole regraded, thereby relieving those which were heretofore crowded. Pupils on entering the school are taken, on examination by the Principal, to their appropriate department and pass to the one higher only at the commencement of each session. Scholars are not allowed the choice of departments, as the grade being applied necessitates the enforcement of strict rules, that classes may not be rendered irregular......Hon. Joseph Smith will leave Oregon for Washington City on the last steamer of September, connecting with the Panama steamer of October 4th.

UP THE VALLEY.—Our Willamette Valley exchanges furnish us with the following: ... The Echo reached Cor... last M...day, but had "rubbed so many bars" that she had to go into a dry dock for repairs......Prof. ... Henderson, of Eugene City, has removed to Bea... ... to take charge of Philomath College......Mrs. ..., living five miles south of Corvallis, was thrown from a horse and badly hurt......Rev. H. Bushnell, A. M., will take charge of the Collegiate Institute at Albany...The wagon road from Jacksonville to Fort Klamath is being repaired and re-opened by private subscription. The California and Oregon Stage Company has closed its office in Sacramento and Marysville and made Oroville its head office in California......Mines.—Henry Hill, Esq., just down from the mines on the McKenzie, reports everything lively, and says several families are going to move up on the river, near the mines, in a short time. A ... for placer diggings has been found on Blue, and Mr. H. thinks there is plenty of good paying ground there. He took up claims and has returned to investigate the ... further.

A great many of the delegates to the National ... Convention in New York left watches and other valuables with their "Uncle." That gentleman—whose sign is the three balls—advises that "valuables left as collaterals by the Conventionists can be ordered by express."

The Washington Chronicle remarks: "The army that beat the rebels in the battle-field, and that party that beat the Democrats in the elections, are more the masters of the position to day than they were on the surrender of Lee."

In 1862, when Seymour was elected Governor of New York, Stonewall Jackson, riding by rail from Fredericksburg to Richmond, called upon the ... at every station for cheers for the triumph of their friends in New York.

CONTESTED ELECTIONS.—From the Dalles Mountaineer we learn that Judge Wilson has been occupied for several days in hearing and deciding causes at Chambers, some of which are of considerable general importance. The causes so heard were:

G. W. Rosencrantz vs. Cameron—Grant county. Plaintiff claimed to contest the right to have the office of Coroner, by reason of the ineligibility of the defendant who has received the majority of votes at the June election, and was not exercising any of the functions of such office.

J. H. Woods vs. Thomas Howard—Grant county. Plaintiff claims, under the law providing for contesting elections, the right to have the office of sheriff of Grant county, for the reason that Howard, though receiving a majority of the votes for that office, was ineligible to hold the office at the time of his election under Section 11, Article 2, of the Constitution.

In both these cases the Judge held that the question of ineligibility of the candidates could not be inquired into under the law for contesting elections, that that law only applied to the legality of votes, and proper canvass thereof. The cases were both dismissed. In the case of Rosencrantz vs. Cameron it further appears that Rosencrantz was still the proper Coroner, by reason of the law for holding over until his successor was elected and qualified.

Woffinger vs. Rice—Grant county. Contest for office of County Commissioner. Continued for taking of proofs.

F. C. Horsely vs. F. C. Sels and others—Grant county. An important case in equity. Owing to other matters, by consent, the Judge made a decree in forma, so that this case could go to the Supreme Court on appeal.

SOIREE.—The First Class of Prof. Cardinell's Dancing School will give a soiree on Wednesday evening, at the Dancing Hall.

CALISAYA BARK.—It is said that Messrs. Drake & Co., (proprietors of the PLANTATION BITTERS,) are the largest importers of Calisaya Bark in this country, and that, with the exception of an occasional sale, that all all they import is used in the compounding of their celebrated PLANTATION BITTERS, and to which they undoubtedly are indebted for their wonderful health-restoring properties. As a Tonic and Appetizer, they are not surpassed, and we cheerfully recommend them. All first-class Druggists keep them for sale.

LOSS AT THE RUINS!—Aye, look at the ruins of what were once magnificent sets of teeth, to be seen everywhere in society. Look at them and ask yourself if it is not marvelous that such destruction is permitted when by simply using SOZODONT, any teeth, however fragile, may be preserved from decay or blemish as long as life lasts?

EXTINGUISHER PORTABLE SELF-ACTING FIRE ENGINE!

THIS INVENTION HAS FOR ITS OBJECT THE extinguishing of Fires in a more instantaneous manner than has hitherto been discovered.

The advantages to be derived from the use of the EXTINGUISHER are as follows:

Every fire begins on a small scale, and its rapid and uncontrollable increase is owing to the fact that at the time of its commencement (when every moment's delay in checking it is of the utmost importance) no means are ready at hand.

The EXTINGUISHER is the only Engine that fills this requirement.

It is always ready for use, though standing unused for years.

It puts out Fire instantly.

It saves the great deluge of water now used for this purpose.

It is as effective in the hands of a Boy as the most experienced Fireman.

It is portable, and as easily handled as a bucket of water.

It possesses within itself the power of a force pump, and as effective as a Steam Engine.

It is the only known invention that will put out Fires from Kerosene, Tar, Naphtaline, and combustible materials now in common use.

PRICE—No. 1, $50; No. 2, $55; No. 3, $60.

HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.

The undersigned who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily inc... The acknowledged superiority of his ...chandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees in...ing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this ...

Let us have Peace

[illegible]

BY WM. [illegible] BOURNE

[illegible]
[illegible] the starry gemmed flag [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] contains [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] that prophecy tempest no more

[illegible]
[illegible]
Who mourn their departed with [illegible]
And [illegible]
And where the [illegible] in their silence are sleeping
The feet of the angels are pressing the sod
And weepers of [illegible] are keeping
While martyrs of freedom have gone to their God

Let us have peace! the strong gal of labor
Where [illegible]
Go wipe off the stains from the death-dealing [illegible]
And build the bright altar of Hope for all lands
Lo! radiant from darkness the temple [illegible]
Throws wide to the world the broad aisles of the fa[illegible]
And freemen shall tell as they utter the story
And children repeat to the ages again

Let us have peace in the chorus ascending
From hamlets that lie mid the [illegible]-covered hills
And [illegible]
Floats [illegible] the plain [illegible] the rills
And rivers that roll [illegible] the land of the West
And prairies that wake to the hymns of the free,
With millions of freemen imploring for rest
Swell psalms of rejoicing while bending the knee

Let us have peace! from the war a wild commotion
The trumpet's alarms, and the crash of the field
And let the new bliss like the billows of ocean
Roll over the land where the hero has kneeled
The smoke of the battle has swept from the sky
The thunders have ceased and the bugle's will blast
The chains have been riven and loud from on high
The reveille calls to the love of the past

LET US HAVE PEACE in a holy thanksgiving
The Hero voice cries in the name of the Lord
For the sake of the dead for the sake of the living
Turn spears into pruning hooks—to plowshares the sword!
And out of the darkness shall come forth the beaming
Of glory a bright sun where the foemen have trod
And Freedom shall teach with a truth all redeeming
That PEACE WITH OUR BROTHER IS PEACE WITH OUR GOD
NEW YORK June 27 1868

Miles O'Reilly on Brick Pomeroy

The New York Citizen calls itself a loyal Democratic paper Brick Pomeroy publishes what he glories in calling a Copperhead repudiation paper, the La Crosse Democrat The Citizen don't like Brick's style of Democracy Here is what he says of Pomeroy and his print:

"Those who have ever read Jean Paul Marat's great revolutionary paper, L'Ami du Peuple cannot fail to be struck with its generic similarity of style to that which Brick Pomeroy edits, nor was their history dissimilar Marat's paper under the fierce forcing process of national passion grew up with even greater rapidity than Pomeroy's, and attained a circulation in a few months greater than of all the other journals of France put together We have not yet reached the days in which Jacobins of the Butler school or Copperheads of the Pomeroy school are in power, and can drive their long train of tumbrils daily to the Place de Greve, with tithits for the Demoiselle la Guillotine—from one hundred and fifty to four hundred heads falling into the soaked sawdust every afternoon to [illegible] that impecunious lady But if ever these days come—and it sometimes appears as if we were hastening in that direction—we have no doubt the La Crosse Democrat would join the [illegible] side and that its circulation, with our improved facilities both for printing and beheading by steam, would increase at least five [illegible] daily for every head that fell [illegible] journal is a thing [illegible] Down South, [illegible] of a conquered and grossly [illegible] people are still inflamed—a simple [illegible] who believe whatever is gravely [illegible] with their [illegible] the La Crosse Democrat is [illegible] and thus incredible [illegible] While up here in the [illegible] Democrats—[illegible] so far as to suspect Mr. Pomeroy [illegible] and of malice aforethought [illegible] in the Radical interest and to advance the Radical [illegible] have not met the first one yet, who does not agree with us in regarding the La Crosse Democrat as the most effective and powerful campaign document now issued in behalf of the Radical candidate and party It reaches men who cannot be reached by the New York Tribune or the Chicago Tribune—it reaches Democrats and how many of these it has already driven away from our camp by the frequent brutalities and continual ferocities of its diatribes we intend employing half a dozen Philadelphia lawyers to calculate just so soon as this hot spell shall be over."

THE PRESIDENT IN A RAGE—We are indebted to the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times for a pen photograph of the President as he appeared on the last day of the session None of Mr. Johnson's predecessors bear close inspection so ill as he Here is what his political friend says of the scene, in the President's room at the Capitol:

"The President went to the Capitol at ten o'clock to-day, to be present to sign bills, so as to prevent the delays in transmission to the White House He occupied his room in the rear of the Senate Chamber, and, [illegible] by all the members of his Cabinet, examined and acted on all the bills as they were presented to him. The situation, however, was too great for his patience, for the bills came thick and fast, and cards showered in upon him in great numbers. The ventilation was also poor and he sweated and scolded, and scolded and perspired, giving short answers to the Senators and others who approached him from time to time His petulance getting the better of his courtesy, he refused to see such Senators as sought him and would answer no questions whatever There was great anxiety to know if the President was to sign the Funding bill or if he was to call an extra session, and other matters of material interest and he, at last, in a foaming rage, made for the White House"

We suppose the reason why the telegraph failed to convey us the hymn sung in the National Democratic Convention after its opening prayer was because that institution objects to transmitting poetry over the wires We have received the hymn by mail however and give the first stanza:

> Great God are we yet alive
> And do we yet rebel?
> 'Tis wondrous [illegible] amazing grace
> That we are out of hell
> —Territorial Enterprise

FOR GRANT.—Rev. Dr Breckinridge of Kentucky, has come out for Gen Grant He says he "sees in him the finest man for the office of President in America, as well as the [illegible] sort of an American gentleman not a [illegible] dazzling everybody with the brilliancy of his intellect, but a man of great ability, of sound judgment, and of undoubted fairness and honesty"

FOR [illegible]—That editors keep public [illegible] rooms. That they have plenty of [illegible] to talk to everybody That they are delighted to get anything to fill up the paper with

During the late war Grant took towns, cities fortifications, armies, and Generals too numerous to mention During the same period Seymour took only a stand in favor of the rebellion

Col. Lester an ex-confederate officer of Georgia, has come out strong for Grant and Colfax.

A New York paper has a new motto for a stage driver which is classically apt Jam [illegible] in omnibus
